HOME-MADE HIEROGLYPHICS

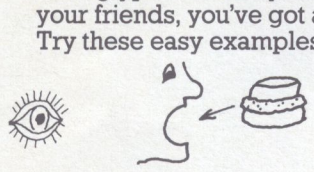
The writing of Ancient Egypt, scene of this issue's THRILLING ADVENTURES, is called HIEROGLYPHICS. Egyptian hieroglyphics can be hard to understand, unless you're an expert like Dr. Charlie Snark. Luckily, it's easy to make up your own, once you know how.

DR. CHARLIE'S GUIDE TO HIEROGLYPHICS

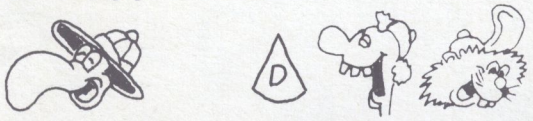
1. The basic idea of hieroglyphics is that they are pictures of words. So a picture of a bee means a bee; a picture of a bee on a jar might mean a pot of honey, ≈≈ means water – in ancient Egypt it meant the River Nile – and so on.
2. If you want to use a word like "go", draw a pair of legs without a body – . If you want to say "walk", draw the bodiless legs walking – . And if you want to say "run", draw a pair of legs running – .
3. Longer words can be fun, but you have to use your imagination. "Beetle", for instance can be written using "bee" and "tall" to make "bee tall". For "tall" why not put a stick man next to a tree – . Then try making some examples of your own.

By now, you are probably pretty confused. Pictures can mean a lot of different things, you may say. True. The way round this is to use a Rosetta Stone* – make your own list of the hieroglyphic words you have invented, with their meanings. If you give copies of the list to your friends, you've got a SECRET CODE!

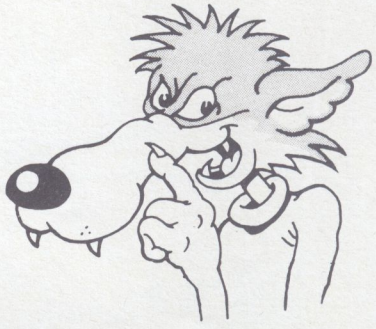
Try these easy examples:



I am hungry



Dr. Charlie Snark is a twit hee hee MIKE



Now make up your own message – and send it to Dr. Charlie Snark at MIKE! There will be a PRIZE for the best hieroglyphic letter we get!

*Historical note: The Rosetta Stone, dug up by archaeologists in Egypt in 1779, bore the same message written in three ancient languages. One of the languages was already known – so the two others, one of which was Hieroglyphics, could easily be translated. The Rosetta Stone is now in the British Museum.

DOCTOR CHARLIE SNARK WRITES

Greetings, loyal readers.

Welcome once again to the Dr. Charlie Snark page, the most brilliant jokes page in the world! I am happy to say that the jokes are STREAMING in, and that we are able to award many of our famous WORST PRIZES for the worst riddle, the worst knock knock joke and the worst any other kind of joke that raises a GROAN OF AGONY from our highly trained JOKE SELECTION STAFF. Personally, I have not yet understood any joke any of you have sent in, but this is not surprising since a person of my GENIUS cannot be expected to have much of a sense of humour. MIKE, who as you know is a nice person but by no means a genius, finds them all HILARIOUS.

Remember that I am still looking for an ASSISTANT – a clever person with a sense of humour who thinks that Dr. Charlie Snark is the GREATEST MIND OF THE CENTURY! Several people have written for the job, but although BRILLIANT, they are not quite right yet. So when you're sending in the jokes, why not apply? (A hint – don't be afraid to grovel, I like it.)

Farewell, dear readers! And keep sending the jokes!!

Your Joke Editor,

Dr. Charlie Snark.

Doctor, Doctor, How can I avoid that run down feeling?
Look both ways before crossing the road!

Doctor, Doctor, I think I'm a Hi-Fi-System!!!

Jenny Hancock, 19 Tenter Balk Lane, Adwick-le-Street, Doncaster DN6 7EQ.

Dear Dr. Charlie Snark,
I think you are wonderful, I have to wear glasses too. Whatever people think, I think your nose is really cute. I enjoy your humour and jokes. Here's one joke I think is great.

MIKE'S FANTASTIC FASCINATING FACTS

Dear MIKE,
Robinson Crusoe really did exist! Fifteen years before the book, a Scottish sailor, Alexander Silkirk, was abandoned on the island of Juan Fernandez off the coast of Chile. The island was uninhabited, so he was quite alone for four years until a British Captain saved him. The Captain wrote an account of Selkirks adventures, and Defoe based his story on this.
FASCINATING EH!

Dear MIKE,
Did you know that within four days of the start of the great fire of London, 13,000 houses were destroyed, 89 churches (including St. Paul's) were burnt down and 200,000 people were made homeless. Amazingly only 6 people were killed! Now beat that for a fact.
